Summary of reasons for decision:

The computer moving image file contains a compilation of scenes explicitly depicting women engaged in a variety of sexual activities with dogs. The publication promotes and supports bestiality. The publication presents sex with animals as normal and encourages the viewer to become aroused by it. It supports the idea that bestiality is an acceptable sexual activity, and that animals are a readily available tool for human sexual expression. As such it is deemed objectionable under s3(2)(e) of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993 (FVPC Act).

The classification of this publication interferes with the freedom of expression, as set out in section 14 of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990. This outcome is consistent, however, with Parliament's intention that publications falling under s3(2) of the FVPC Act are deemed to be objectionable. The classification is also a reasonable limitation on the freedom of expression that reflects the concern of a free and democratic society to limit the availability of publications that promote and support bestiality.
